Get Dialed In To Knowledge

While your students are expanding their minds, bacteria is expanding its reach. Desktop surfaces, doorknobs, workstations and lab equipment all act as superhighways for the spread of harmful bacteria. Creating a culture of hygiene while your students are young can make a dramatic difference. In fact, the simple act of regular hand washing is an important tactic in preventing one from getting sick with illnesses like the flu, as well as decreasing the risk of getting others sick.

When it comes to protecting your students, faculty and staff, knowledge is power.

5 Steps To Hand Washing

Soap & water
are more effective than hand sanitizers
at removing bacteria.

Get Dialed In To Hand Hygiene

One of the easiest, and most effective ways to prevent the spread of bacteria is through hand washing and sanitizing. Regular hand washing, especially after using the restroom and before eating, can reduce the chances of getting sick with diarrhea up to 40%, and can reduce the risks of catching colds and other respiratory illnesses up to 21%. Providing easy to use, convenient hand hygiene options in common areas like restrooms and cafeterias can make all the difference.

There's nothing common about protecting those in your common areas.

Get Dialed In To Victory

Handwashing is shown to reduce the risk of respiratory infections up to 21%

Dial Detail

One of the fundamental skills athletes learn in sports is passing the ball. Unfortunately, they're also passing harmful bacteria every time they step into the gym, locker room, physical therapy or training room. With the average American child contracting 6.5 colds a year, each lasting three to five days, it's vital your students, faculty, staff and fans have the body and hand hygiene products they need to fight the spread of bacteria.

From hand sanitizers to foaming soaps to whole body washes, providing superior hygiene options is always a winning strategy.

80%
of common infections
are spread by hands

Get Dialed In To Well Being

While it's not often seen, protecting the "back of the house" is just as important as safeguarding the more trafficked areas of your facilities. From the kitchen and laundry room, to the transportation center and custodial areas, one call can ensure every area throughout your district has the hygiene-promoting products on hand. With a wide array of products in which to choose, you'll have what you need, when you need it.

Now you can provide more protection in those lesser seen areas.
